

Promote the benefits of learning, become a

COMMUNITY LEARNING CHAMPION

NMLL is currently seeking volunteers to become Community Learning Champions.

Community Learning Champions (CLCs) are trained and supported to help members of their community connect to learning. CLCs will actively participate in the design and development of local courses, programs, activities and events.

Why be a Community Learning Champion?

- Develop your skills through volunteering
- Receive training
- Encourage people in your community to connect to learning and training opportunities
- Represent your community's needs

Who can be a Community Learning Champion?

If you –

- Are connected with community groups in North Melbourne, Flemington or Carlton
- Speak English and a language other than English, and
- Are passionate about the benefits of learning

You can become a Community Learning Champion!

What does it involve?

- Attending 4 training workshops, where volunteers will learn community engagement skills and learn about learning and employment pathways.
- Attending monthly meetings
- Supporting and encouraging friends, neighbours and community members learn about and take up learning and employment opportunities.
- Consulting community on learning and employment needs and,
- Supervision with CLC coordinator, where volunteers are provided with one on one support

Volunteers must be able to attend the following training dates at

NMLL, 33 Alfred st, North Melbourne

Thursday 18th February 9:30am – 12:30pm

Thursday 25th February 9:30am – 12:30pm
